Traditional Brown Betty Tea Pot by Royal Caldome Pottery

During Queen Victoria's reign, tea became a symbol of Britain's greatest period of expansion and stability. Every home owned a teapot, even if it was a basic "Brown Betty".

Succeeding generations of Englishmen have proved that the Brown Betty, as they became affectionately known, make the best pot of tea in the world. The shape of the pot causes the tea leaves to gently swirl around as the boiling water is added, thus producing an exquisite infusion.
